In the 7th century BCE, the city of Byzantium was built on the European side of the Strait of Bosphorus in what is now modern Turkey. Hundreds of years later, the Roman emperor Constantine renamed it Nova Roma (New Rome). The city later became Constantinople, in honor of its Roman founder; it was renamed Istanbul by the Turks during the 20th century.

The Intelligence Revolution and the Future, Wesley K. Wark. The intelligence revolution is a distinctly 20th century phenomenon, one of the least well understood developments of our time. It began with the surfacing of some extraordinary fantasies into the political consciousness of modern Europe. As the century opened, French society shuddered its way through the scandal known as the Dreyfus ...

Alex Constantine was the first investigative journalist to uncover this history and to publish the facts in a mainstream journal (High Times). The entire extra-terrestrial myth was a creation of the Central Intelligence Agency and the international fascist underground. The following paper by Alex Constantine should prove the point beyond doubt.
